

Take our test to gauge whether or not it is worth you applying for After the Event (ATE) Litigation Insurance cover

We do not want to put you off applying if you wish to, so by all means complete our Proposal Form, pay us the £250 Application Fee and we will do our best. But it is difficult to get any Insurers to offer cover on all but the strongest cases nowadays, so unless you can answer 'yes' to most if not all of the following questions, the odds of us managing to obtain for you at least one affordable offer of cover are poor.

1. Are you the claimant in the legal action?
2. Do you have a Solicitor acting for you already?
3. Does your Solicitor consider your prospects of success are 60% or higher?
4. Is your Solicitor taking some risk in terms of his retainer?
5. Do you have a Barrister who has provided a written opinion on the merits and quantum of your claim?
6. Is your legal action sufficiently developed such that you know your Opponent is not going to settle without a fight?
7. Is your legal action still a long way from ending up in Court?
8. Are you going to win enough to comfortably pay the ATE premium without giving up a lot of your winnings in doing so? (if the amount of cover you require under the ATE policy is more than, say, half what you are reasonably expecting to win from your Opponent – assuming you do win – the cost of the ATE protection may significantly eat into your winnings)
